

SRG Global are investing in TLC (The Lighting Consultants), creating a partnership to expand both companies' capabilities in illuminated and decorative solutions for the future of mobility.

SRG make coatings for plastics for the automotive and commercial truck industries. TLC are a vehicle lighting manufacturer offering interior and exterior lighting solutions.

"Our customers have challenged us to expand our technical competency around illumination, and similarly, TLC customers are eager for the company to increase their ability to scale up to bring innovations to the industry," said SRG Global engineering, tooling, and innovation VP David Dunford. "This relationship provides solutions to these challenges."

The two companies have already successfully worked on several projects in Europe and North America. "The partnership is the next step in advancing our capabilities and we have aligned our vision for the future of lighting and smart surfaces being a key market driver," added Chris Eardley, founder and company director of The Lighting Consultants.